HOW PROJECT OVERRIDE WORKS.

our_mission.exe

Our mission is to empower students as leaders for social media safety and agents for change both within their communities and globally. Through opportunities for education, real-world application, and community-based action, Project Override clubs offer the support and resources necessary for teens to reclaim their time and attention, bolster their sense of agency, and use their voices to shape the future of social media safety.

what_schools_can_expect.exe

> Student-led, faculty-advised. Every chapter has a faculty advisor, and a documented advisor role description is provided.

> Evidence-based, centrally vetted programming. Clubs build their year from a staff-reviewed activity library and a nine-month community initiative ending in a public showcase.

> Free to schools, no accounts held. Fundraising is optional; any funds raised are remitted to the national organization under a strict fundraising policy.

> Safety built in. Faculty advisors serve as mandatory reporters, and every club operates under posted disclosures that include crisis resources.

nonpartisanship.exe

Clubs endorse no candidates, parties, or legislation. Every chapter operates under an electioneering prohibition acknowledged annually by its faculty advisor and student officers. The Organization for Social Media Safety separately conducts nonpartisan advocacy for social media safety legislation; clubs take no part in that work.

about_the_organization.exe

The Organization for Social Media Safety is a national 501(c)(3) that teaches social media safety in K-12 schools across the country, serving school communities with hundreds of thousands of students. Project Override grew directly out of that classroom work and is informed by our ongoing university research partnership.
